WHY ROOIBOS

Rooibos is a caffeine-free herbal tea grown only in South Africa. It's a natural ingredient with growing demand in the health and wellness market. For manufacturers, retailers and wellness brands, Rooibos offers a clean-label, functional raw material that's easy to use across product categories, from teas and supplements to skincare and food blends.

Known for its smooth, slightly sweet, and nutty flavour profile, Rooibos features earthy, woody, and honey-like notes, with occasional hints of floral or caramel. Unlike traditional black or green tea, Rooibos is naturally caffeine-free and low in tannin with lower astringency. Rooibos makes up 30% of the South-African tea category and has become a cultural symbol in South Africa. Its popularity continues to grow globally, driven by both its taste and widely recognised health benefits.

All Carmién Tea Products are Rooibos-based (Rooibos means "Red Bush" in Afrikaans) and are grown in the unique (60,000 ha) Western Cape region of South Africa. Rooibos is grown from seed or seedlings, from one cultivar only, Aspalathus Linearis. It is a needle-like bush with a deep tap root system and a 5-year life cycle, well known worldwide for its exceptional health benefits.

In May 2021, Rooibos became the first African food to receive the status of Geographical Indication (GI), Regulation (EU) No 1151/2012, granting it the Protected Designation of Origin (PDO). Sixteen regions within the Western and Northern Cape of South Africa are the only regions where Rooibos can be grown and named "Rooibos".

Our Carmién Rooibos tea farms are spread across these areas, and together with our long-term contracted producers, we obtain Rooibos from all the specified regions.

ROOIBOS: GRADING & TASTING CRITERIA

Cultivar: Aspalathus Linearis

Carmién Tea produces high-quality Rooibos with a strong focus on consistency and customer needs. We tailor our product range to match specific customer needs. Our offering includes a variety of Rooibos cuts, each with its own composition and taste profile, ideal for everything from teabags and loose-leaf products to extracts and blends. Our skilled team follows strict quality control procedures at every step. We test and evaluate each batch to make sure it meets our high standards. All our Rooibos is processed in a facility certified under FSSC 22000, HACCP, and Organic standards (EU, USDA, JAS).

These certifications ensure food safety and product integrity across all cuts and formats.

Rooibos Super Fine Cut (SFC):

The finest tea cut; 0.5mm - 2mm; strong cup infusion; typical sweet aroma with slightly more astringency; also known as a 'teabag' cut. Used for retail packaging. Volumetric density varies from 300 ml/100 g to 360 ml/100 g. Granules can be added to better the density, should it be necessary.

Rooibos Short Cut (SC):

A slightly coarser cut than SFC; 0.5 mm - 2.5 mm; smooth; typical sweet aroma; amber cup infusion, and mainly sold for certain packed tea products when blended with other herbs and/or fruit teas.

Rooibos Long Cut (LC):

A longer tea leaf cut; 3mm - 6mm and uniform in cut size; smooth; typical sweet amber cup, and mainly sold as 'loose' tea but also an excellent base for blended (loose) fruit & herbal teas in pyramid teabags.

Rooibos Choice Grade (CH):

Irregular cut size, available in a coarser or finer 'teabag' cut; contains more stem; finer cut mainly used for teabags and the coarser cut for (tagless) teabags or pyramid teabags, where coarser cuts beautifully display the visual elements of the ingredients.

Rooibos Recycle Grade (REC):

These are customized grades prepared from a certain percentage re-worked products according to customers preferences.

Rooibos Powder:

The very fine powder sifted out during processing from all grades; also used for manufacturing of espresso mixes and granulates. Rich in flavour and high in density.

Rooibos Micro Powder:

Finely milled rooibos powder used in smoothies, shakes, over cereal or for culinary uses; does not dissolve completely in liquids.

GREEN ROOIBOS: GRADING & TASTING CRITERIA

Cultivar: Aspalathus Linearis

Green Rooibos is unfermented, thus have not gone through the fermentation (oxidation) process which turns the green leaves into a red/brown colour.

It is therefore also higher in antioxidants with increased benefit.

The pH levels of unfermented Rooibos is slightly higher than fermented Rooibos.

Green (unfermented) Rooibos Super Fine Cut (SFC):

Typical light cup infusion; 0.5mm - 2mm; green taste with caramel notes; can be used for 'teabag' packing; density is usually less than that of fermented red rooibos tea.

Green (unfermented) Rooibos Long Cut (LC):

Light cup infusion; 3mm - 6mm; green taste with caramel notes; used and mainly sold as 'loose' tea but also an excellent base for blended (loose) fruit & herbal teas.

Green (unfermented) Rooibos Powder:

The very fine powder sifted out during processing from all grades; also used for manufacturing of espresso mixes and granulates; rich in flavour and high in density.

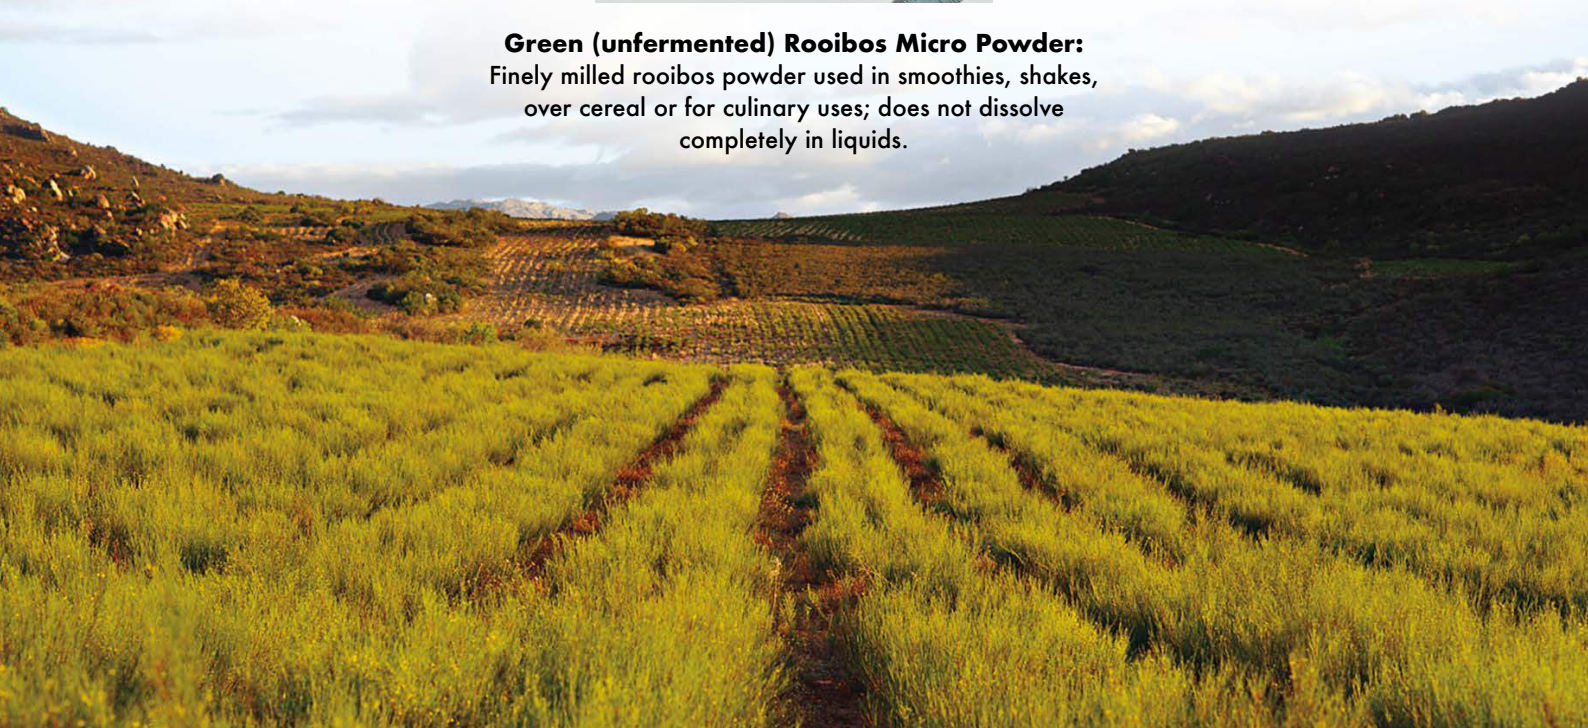

Green (unfermented) Rooibos Micro Powder:

Finely milled rooibos powder used in smoothies, shakes, over cereal or for culinary uses; does not dissolve completely in liquids.

ROOIBOS ESPRESSO

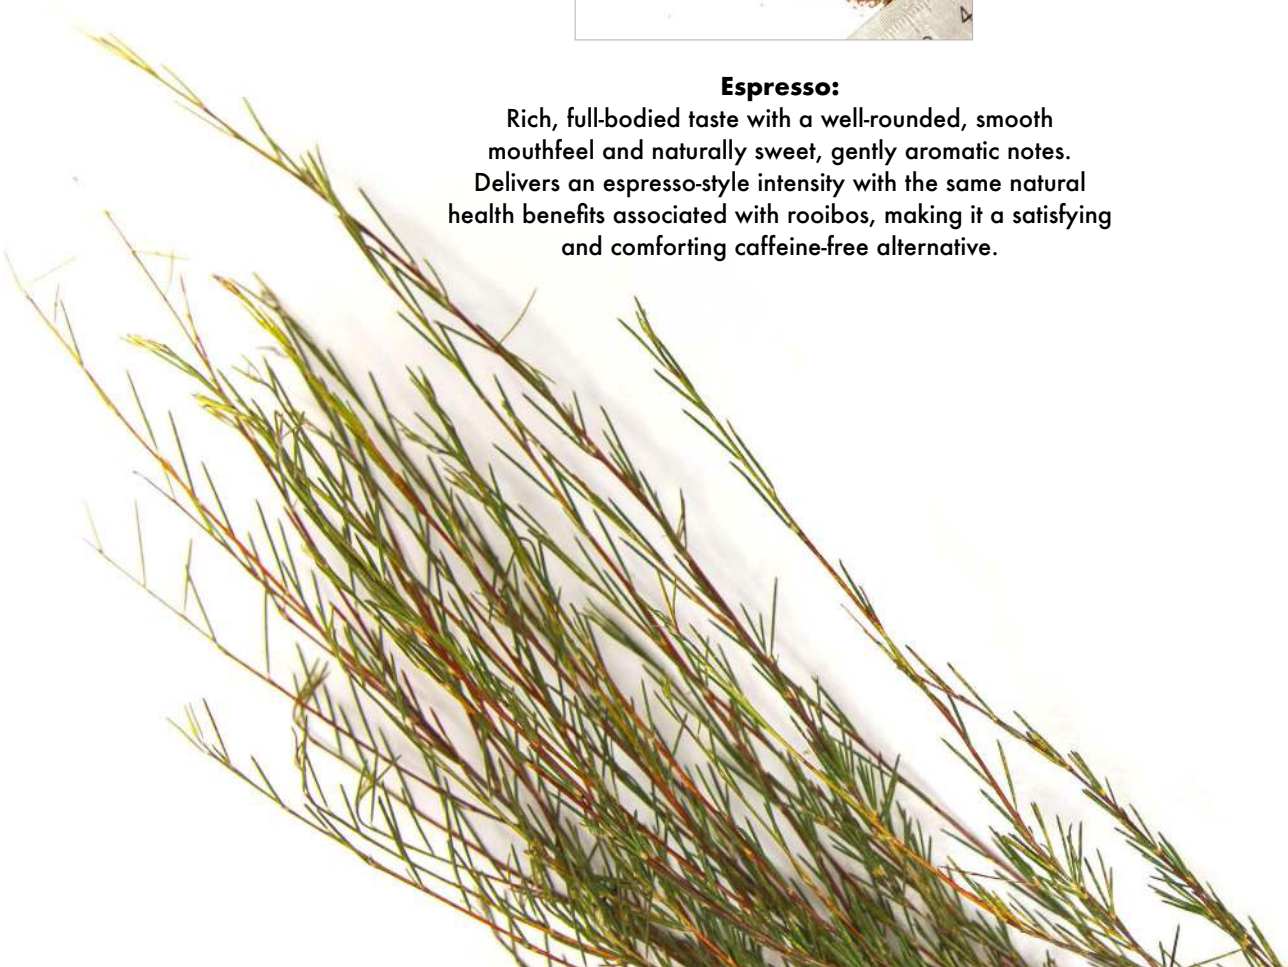

Carmién Rooibos Espresso is a finely ground, speciality rooibos cut developed for espresso-style extraction in bulk applications. Designed for use in moka pots, AeroPress, French press, filter and espresso machines, it delivers a bold aroma with a smooth, full mouthfeel and the naturally sweet, rounded flavour rooibos is known for. Made from high-quality, traceable South African rooibos, it offers a consistent, caffeine-free base for café beverages, retail concepts and wellness-focused ranges. Supplied in bulk, Carmién Rooibos Espresso gives partners reliable quality, versatile usage and an easy way to differentiate with a rooibos-forward espresso alternative.

ESPRESSO: TASTING CRITERIA

Espresso:

Rich, full-bodied taste with a well-rounded, smooth mouthfeel and naturally sweet, gently aromatic notes. Delivers an espresso-style intensity with the same natural health benefits associated with rooibos, making it a satisfying and comforting caffeine-free alternative.

HONEYBUSH

Honeybush is also a unique herbal tea from South Africa, grown more towards the South West and Eastern Coast Districts of South Africa. The flowers of the Honeybush shrub have a honey-like smell, hence the name. Honeybush is sweeter, naturally caffeine-free and fuller bodied than Rooibos, a taste often described as floral, lightly roasted and similar to honey. It is made from Cyclopia species, with Cyclopia subternata (vleitee) and Cyclopia genistoides (kustee) being the most common commercially cultivated varieties, while Cyclopia intermedia (bergtee) is most often used in wild harvesting. Unfermented Green Honeybush has not undergone the fermentation process that gives it its distinct red colour. Therefore, it is also higher in antioxidants, with increased health benefits. The pH levels of unfermented Honeybush are slightly higher than those of fermented Honeybush.

HONEYBUSH: GRADING & TASTING CRITERIA

Honeybush Super Fine Cut (SFC):

Honeybush is a full bodied herbal tea with spicy notes; 0.5mm - 2mm; the different cultivars have different flavour profiles and a blend ensures best consistency; the fine cut is used for 'teabag' packaging.

Honeybush Coarse Cut (CC):

Though fermented, has a light cup infusion with a full body flavour profile; used and mainly sold as 'loose' tea but also an excellent base for blended (loose) fruit & herbal teas; used in pyramid teabags and loose blends.

Green (unfermented) Honeybush Super Fine Cut (SFC):

Light cup infusion; 0.5mm - 2mm; full smooth flavour profile; can be used for teabag packaging.

Green (unfermented) Honeybush Coarse Cut (SC):

Light cup infusion still with a full smooth flavour profile; 0.5 mm- 2.5 mm; used and mainly sold as 'loose' tea but also an excellent base for blended (loose) fruit & herbal teas; used in pyramid teabags and loose blends.

Buchu is a medicinal plant that grows in the Cederberg region of South Africa. It has been used for centuries to help with kidney, bladder and joint problems. Today, it is made into teas, waters, oils and capsules. Buchu is a natural anti-inflammatory and diuretic, helping to flush out toxins and support overall health. It can be used for conditions like arthritis, high blood pressure and urinary infections. Buchu also has a fresh, herbal taste and is sometimes added to food, drinks and perfumes. It is grown as part of the Cape Floral Kingdom, a protected biodiversity area.

BUCHU: GRADING & TASTING CRITERIA

Buchu Fine Cut (FC):

Made from air-dried leaves and stalks of the Buchu plant, milled and sieved to a uniform size ideal for teabag packing. This grade offers a consistent particle size with a balanced mix of leaf and stem, perfect for large-scale tea production.
